WHAT TELEGRAPH POLES ARE MEANT FOR.

In the island of Sumatra, at the bottom of the map. Where Asia holds such giant lands in her capacious lap. The elephants rise fiercely, in the maddest kind of mob. When the telegraph employes have finished up a job, And joined by wires electric places very far away. For the purpose of conversing—if they've anything to say: These animals uproarious will throw upon the ground The telegraphic poles and wires wherever they are found. While wires and insulators are carried off to hide In the deep, glomy jungles where the angry beasts abide. All the labor goes for nothing when the poles are set again; For the elephants are watching these persevering men. Who stick poles where they don't want them, across their "right of way." And they tear down in the night-time what the men have done by day.

With the monkeys and baboons it is quite another thing. For the telegraphic wires make the nicest kind of swing; And just the firmest tight rope for any sort of antic. While rambling on from "pole to pole" s'unds really quite romantic. It's a very cute arrangement, far better than the trees. Which do for common purposes, but not for such as these. "And those lovely colored glasses!" says delighted Mrs. Ape. "This really looks like living in some decent sort of shape: The coconut shells hold water, which is all that one can say. But these glasses for the future shall cover my buffet." So the monkeys haste to gather all the prizes they can reach, And twist off every insulator with a triumphant screech. While they chatter and they gibber, and they dance and they play On the telegraphic wires all the night and all the day.

We read in "Mother Goose" of quiet little Miss Muffet, Who was eating curds and whey, and sitting on a tuffet. When, in the midst of happiness, there came along a spider, And, without waiting to be asked, sat down just beside her. Now the spiders in Japan treat the telegraphic wires (Not daunted in the least by their being such high-flyers) As this spider did Miss Muffet, and coolly take a seat On the pole, perhaps, beside the wires so high above the street; For they bring their spinning with them, so dainty and so fine, And they drop, to begin with, an experimental line. With such a handy frame-work as these telegraphic wires Mrs. Spider soon can weave a web that meets all her desires. With draperies for the parlor that's to catch the silly fly. And it is the prettiest parlor that ever you did spy.

On the bare Western plains there's a dreadful lack of trees, And nothing for the buffaloes to scratch themselves at ease; So a telegraphic pole proves a blessing in disguise.

That brings the tears of gratitude to many half-roofed eyes. Though first with some suspicion: "What ever is this thing?" Exclaims, in great perplexity, the dauntless prairie King; Then makes a sudden onslaught, as is his mighty way, To find a pole for scratching, and not a foot to buy. "How jolly!" says King Buffalo—"how very kind of man To get up this convenience on such an easy plan! One grand good scratch, and then I'm off"—but so the pole is, too, Off from its equilibrium—a sorry sight to view. That sudden rush of matter lays it flat upon the plain. Until the telegraphic men have set it up again; And when they seek with roughest nails to bristle it all o'er, The buffalo pronounces them even kinder than before; For what are nails for but to scratch? and as scratching is his plan, He feels under obligations to the thoughtfulness of man. So he scratches all the poles down, rejoicing on his way, While the men who set them up again have something else to say: That something is not flattering to friend buffalo at all. But he is off beyond the sound of voice or musket-ball. —Ella Rodman Church, in Harper's Young People.

Sleeping Accommodations.

Cleanliness is the great essential. Our life is passive during the hours of sleep, but our breathing goes on constantly, and the demand for pure air in sleeping rooms is very important. There should always be communication with the outside air, and in warm weather, the doors and windows may all be wide open. If currents of air can sweep through the rooms in the day time (or in the night without endangering the sleepers), so much the better. The bad air that originates in sleeping rooms—the waste substance that escapes from human bodies, by the lungs and skin—settles and clings about the carpets, curtains, bedding and clothing, tainting them with decomposing, and it may be, poisonous matter, unless a constant cleansing process is carried on by plentiful airing, and the action of light, especially sunshine. The room should contain as little drapery as possible. Rugs are better than carpets, and no heavy curtains should be used. The bed should not be made up after using, until the bedding has been well aired, and the more it can be exposed to bright sunshine, and out-door breezes, the better. The room should be kept as free as possible from all odors. The night clothing should be well aired during the day, and the day clothing be placed at night where it will get aired before it is again worn.

Sleeping rooms are often much crowded. It would be well, could each, when old enough, have a private room and a clean bed apiece. A great gain in health would result from this arrangement. In our present state of poverty, we can only insist that no more than two ought to occupy the same bed. It is an outrage on infancy to wedge a baby in between two grown-up people. Much injury is done to the health and to the morals of children, by the crowded sleeping arrangements in families. The practice is now becoming quite common among careful people, where there are several young children, for the parents to divide the care of the little ones, the mother taking the youngest in her bed, and the father attending to the next to the youngest, and to others if there is need. It seems a pity that the man of the house should be broken of his rest, but it is quite as bad a thing to have the children's mother made sick and nervous from lack of sleep, and excess of care. With attention to the laws of health, especially in regard to food and air, there need be little suffering from broken rest, as healthy children sleep soundly and quietly, and need little care.—American Agriculturist.

—Mr. Eugene Schuyler, who has been connected with the United States diplomatic service in Europe for many years, has returned to New York on a visit. In speaking of the present exodus of Russian Jews from that country he says that one of the grievances that led to the present troubles are the methods they have employed for getting the peasantry in their power. The Jews, he states, lend money on good security and then insist upon the most rigid enforcement of their claims. They are the possessors of a great deal of land which has come to them through this means. None of the Jews are artisans or farmers.—Chicago News.

—It is better to have all the ground in an orchard occupied with vegetables that can be eaten than to allow any part of it to grow up with weeds. Edible plants do not injure the soil any more than weeds do, and if the first are not planted the last will be sure to grow unless the hoe is frequently used.—Cincinnati Times.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

TERMS:—The EVENING BULLETIN is published daily, and served free of postage at 6 cents per week; 25 cents per month; 75 cents per three months; $1.50 per six months, and $3 per year, payable in advance.

THE EVENING BULLETIN HAS A LARGER CIRCULATION IN THIS CITY, CHESTER AND ABERDEEN, OHIO, THAN ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN MAYSVILLE.

Public Speaking.

The Hon. John G. Carlisle will address the people of this city and county at the court house in Maysville, on Thursday evening, October 26th, at 7 o'clock. Everybody is invited to come and hear this distinguished Democrat.

The newest name for Half Breeds in York, applied, of course by the Stalwarts, is Sponge Cake Republicans.

FRED CAPTAIN, JR., arrested for the murder of A. W. Ross, at Glendale, O., about two weeks ago, has confessed his connection with the crime. He implicates not only himself, but also his father and a colored man named Harris.

COVINGTON Commonwealth: In a case in the Boone Circuit Court, arising under the Auditor's Agent Act, Judge Major decided that the state had no cause of action against the personal representatives; that under the act, the right of action is against the owner of the property, and therefore the courts have no jurisdiction when the proceedings are instituted against executors, etc.

The color line has been abolished in a practical manner by the Democracy of Memphis, the nominating convention of that party having last week nominated three white and two colored men to represent Shelby county in the lower house of the Tennessee Legislature. The colored men thus recognized are said to be men of intelligence, and will receive the united support of the democrats of Memphis.

Affairs in New York have a decidedly gloomy look for the Republicans. In the city it is said the Republican committee has utterly failed to make up the amount of money called for to be used in the canvass and that President Arthur has been pressed to announce his abandonment of Conkling and his fortune, in the hope of appeasing the Half Breed faction and bringing them to the support of the ticket. In the face of this it is stated that Conkling opposes Folger's election and a red hot fight all around is set down on the programme.

The election for congressman in this district takes place on Tuesday November 7th, and while there is no doubt of Col. Hurt's election the Democrats of the district should not, by neglecting to discharge their obligations to the party, be instrumental in reducing the handsome majority our friends in other parts of the state and elsewhere have the right to expect the district will give. It is pretty well known that extraordinary means will be resorted to by the Republicans to obtain votes for Mr. Culbertson and it would therefore be wise for the Democracy to be on the alert and guard against all surprises that may be sprung upon them by their adversaries in any quarter. In Mason county, especially, at this time it is necessary that the full Democratic vote should be polled and it is to be earnestly hoped that every member of the party will appreciate the necessity and arouse himself to his fullest sense of duty.

At the trial of Bob Ford, for the murder of Wood Hite, at Plattsburg, Mo., the taking of evidence was continued and the defense is closely contesting every inch of ground.

The Stalwart Republican faction in this section, of the State, which has put Mr. Culbertson, of Boyd county, in nomination for Congress in this district, can have no hope of electing him over the regular Democratic nominee Col. J. S. Hurt. If there had been any reasonable hope of success Mr. Culbertson would not have been the person chosen to make the race. In every sense of the word, Col. Wm. H. Wadsworth was the most acceptable man in the Republican ranks, not only on account of his high standing in the party, but because of his great personal popularity and worth and former experience as a congressman. It was only when it was well understood, that Col. Wadsworth would not enter the race against so worthy a Democrat as Col. Hurt, that the cross-road politicians of the Republican party, acceded to the wishes of Mr. Culbertson and made him their candidate. No one can seriously believe that he has the ghost of a chance of success.

The Democrats of the district never were more confident of carrying the district by a larger majority than they now are. Nevertheless, they should omit no effort in every part of the district to bring out a large vote. There should be no laggard Democrats in this contest, but every man should go to the polls and cast his vote for Col. Hurt. He is a man of worth, thoroughly sound in his Democratic principles and well informed upon all subjects at issue between the parties. He is full of State pride, and has the courage to do right at all times and under all circumstances.

THERE has not been a time within the memory of man when the BULLETIN since it has been in existence, has not taken occasion to aim a blow at everything attempted by our city council or public spirited citizens in the way of improvements. It seems to have some everlasting grudge at anything in the nature of progress, and instead of fulfilling its true duty as a newspaper in helping forward and advocating measures which will be for the good of the public, it attempts to give all such efforts a black eye.—New Republican.

The foregoing piece of venom from the New Republican was prompted by the criticisms the BULLETIN felt called upon to make on the unsafe facilities provided for crossing the bridge while it was in course of construction. It was very dangerous, a single plank only being provided to cross over a chasm at least sixty feet in depth, and as many ladies and children were obliged to go over it every day the BULLETIN felt called upon to direct attention to the fact that two planks might be put down from the many lying around instead of one. If it was possible to make a crossing at all it was possible to make a safe one. This is the entire head and front of the BULLETIN's offending. The falsity of the Republican's article is apparent upon its face. The BULLETIN has given more free advertisements to public movements in Maysville and expended more time and money in such interests than the New Republican will do in the next twenty-five years. It is hardly necessary to say that the columns of the BULLETIN, and whatever influence it carries with it, is now and always has been at the service of the public. The motive that prompts this misrepresentation by the New Republican we are at a loss to comprehend.

POSTMASTER PEARSON, of New York, having heard that the heads of the departments in the Post-office had been requested to aid in collecting the political assessments from the employees under them, made by Jay Hubbell, the great Republican blackmailer, has issued a circular calling the attention of these officers to the fact "that by aiding in the collection of these funds they were guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to fine and discharge from the service of the United States." That postmaster is liable to lose his head if he continues to ignore his party duties in this rash way.

ONE decided point in favor of the Republican candidate at the coming election is the fact that the vote will be taken by ballot.—New Republican.

Not much. This is Kentucky and not New York. There are no John I Davenport and other patriots of like kind here. The ballots placed in the boxes on the 7th of November will be a "decided point in favor" of the man who gets the most of the ballots and that will be J. S. Hurt.

THE Boston Uncle Tom's Troupe with new and attractive features will appear at Washington Opera House, this evening. It is an excellent company and comes well supported by favorable press notices. The following is taken from the New Bedford, (Mass.) Mercury:

"Uncle Tom's Cabin"—The "Boston Double Uncle Tom's Cabin Company" played to an overflowing house in Liberty Hall, last evening, and the presentation of this ever popular drama has never been excelled by any company which has appeared in this city.

A Reproductive Comet.

The present comet in the Eastern sky, which can be distinctly seen by everyone at early morning, is certainly the most remarkable one of the modern comets. Prof. Lewis Swift, director of the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., states that the comet grazed the sun so closely as to cause great disturbance, so much so that it has divided into no less than eight separate parts, all of which can be distinctly seen by a good telescope. There is only one other instance on record where a comet has divided, that one being Biella's comet of 1846, which separated into two parts. Applications have been made on Mr. H. H. Warner by parties who have noted these cometary offshoots, claiming the $200, for each one of them. Whether the great comet will continue to produce a brood of smaller comets remains to be seen.

Circuit Court Proceedings.

The grand jury returned the following indictments, to-wit:

George Thompson permitting a gambling table to be set up and exhibited on premises in his occupation and under his control. Harry Scott, colored. False swearing, Marshall Wooding, setting up gambling table. Alf Berry, carrying concealed deadly weapon. Wm. Berry, same offense. James Sweet, same offense. Stephen Pritchard same offense.

Bench warrants were ordered issued against George Thompson and Marshall Wooding allowing bail in sum of $600. Against Harry Scott, allowing bail in sum of $500, and against the rest of the parties allowing bail in the sum of $100. The grand jury also returned a new indictment against Thomas Wilson, alias "the kid," Samuel Foster, alias Samuel Foulster, and Charles Williams, alias Charles Gorman, alias Charles Bladders, for robbery.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. T. Y. Nesbitt is visiting his relatives at Owingsville.

Gen. John W. Finnell, of Covington, was in Maysville Sunday, the guest of Mr. H. E. Pogue.

Mrs. Fannie Carver returned home Sunday morning, after a very pleasant visit of several weeks to relatives at Metropolis, Illinois.

Mrs. A. B. Crum and Mrs. M. C. Russell, after a pleasant visit to the Lexington Missionary Convention, returned home Friday.

THE election for congressman on Tuesday, November 7th, is by ballot. The fact of the vote by ballot is that much in favor of W. W. Culbertson.—New Republican.

Considering the record of the Republican party in the matter of the stuffing of ballot boxes, the above is decidedly a candid admission for the young editor of the New Republican to make. The Democrats need have no fears about the ballot business. See that they bear the name of J. S. Hurt and that only, and with no other distinguishing mark, and that they are folded so as to conceal the name, and are properly deposited in the box prepared to receive them and we will guarantee that the vote by ballot will not be "that much in favor of W. W. Culbertson."

At Calhoun Station, Mississippi, Wednesday, Ike Jordan beat out his wife's brains with an ax. The murderer is still at large.

The biggest blast ever undertaken on the Pacific coast was exploded on the Oregon and California railway track. Nearly 6,000 pounds of blasting powder were used, and the shock was so tremendous that an adjacent stream was thrown out of its bed for a distance of half a mile; the highway was badly injured and effectually blocked for the same distance, and damage was inflicted in the workmen's camp nine hundred yards away.

The Turf, Field and Farm says Rowell has offered to bet $20,000 that he will win the coming six-day pedestrian race. The sanguine believe six hundred and forty miles will be made.

A Toronto telegram says: Provincial brewers have decided to advance the price of ale from twenty-five to twenty-seven cents per wine gallon, and to forego all reductions and privileges.

Ben Halton, who brought suit against John and Alex Duncan of Oldham county, Ky., for $50,000 damages, has compromised on $700. Halton was suspected of burning property of the Duncans, and more or less violence was used in endeavoring to extort a confession from him.

Five horse thieves, who stole thirty-six horses and mules from eight freighters, at Williams, Arizona, three weeks ago, were surprised in Tigras Canyon, thirty miles east of Albuquerque, N. M., Thursday, by their pursuers, and killed at the first fire. Two of the freighters were wounded. They were traveling overland for Texas, and had covered 500 miles.

The Rev. Sunrise Dana, an Oneida Indian, is traveling as a revivalist. He tells his congregations that his pious mother called him to her death-bed and asked him to go to a secluded place and pray. He did so, and heard a loud voice from heaven commanding him to throw away his tomahawk and scalping knife. A great ball of fire burst over his head, and other phenomena marked his conversion. He adds that his tribe refused to believe his history, and remained scoffers.

A young lady in Dakota has lately advertised for a husband in this practical fashion: "I mean business. If there is any young man in this county that has as much sand in him as a pound of plug tobacco, I want to hear from him. I have a tree claim and homestead, am a good cook and not afraid of work, and willing to do my part. If any man with a like amount of land, and decent face and carcass, wants a good wife, I can fill the bill."

Hemminway called on Miss Stevenson in Pittsfield, Mass., and his rival, Steele, saw him sitting beside her on a sofa. The sight drove Steele to a neighboring saloon, where he drank recklessly. Full of rum and jealousy, he broke into Miss Stevenson's parlor, by this time empty, and cut the sofa's upholstery into ribbons with a knife.

Privates in the United States military service who have disappeared from San Francisco without leaving any trace of their whereabouts are now supposed to have been kidnapped by press gangs for service on English vessels. A private named McGuire was thus treated recently. He was supplied with drugged drink taken aboard a British ship, and when he came to his senses was informed that he had agreed to go along on a voyage to Cork as a man before the mast. His efforts to communicate with his officers ashore were fruitless until he fastened a letter to a piece of wood and threw it aboard a passing steamer. The letter reached its destination, and caused the men's release, through the interference of Government officials and the British Consul.

Say "No" Courteously.

Every one has to say no sometime. And some of us have to say so a great many times. But what diverse ways we have of saying it. How cold and gruff it falls from some men's lips, like a weight of ice, chilling the asker to the very innermost depths of the heart. While another greets you with a smile, but, when he hears your request, grows pensive and sadly shakes his head, and with mock words of profoundest interest in you and in this most worthy object separates from you. But you see through it all, for it is a shallow pretense.

Another declines your request very honestly and in a well-meaning way. He, evidently, does not want to hurt your feelings at all. But he does. He is the man or woman, who begins to explain all the reasons why it is impossible to do what you ask. The next time you meet that man or woman, just count how many times they tread (so unintentionally) on your toes before they get through with their explanation. How many times you feel like saying: "Now don't stop right there. Every word you add makes it more and more unpleasant for both of us." But you don't say it, and the explainer keeps right on. But now and then you find a person who says no both honestly and courteously. There is not a syllable to wound your feelings, nor the least attempt to falsify or extend feigned sympathy. And yet, that little word no has been said. And you are going away without the faintest idea that it means yes when you call again. You will not call again. The thought seems incongruous. But notwithstanding that no, and even in view of it, you feel a sincerer respect for the one who said it; you cannot recall the occasion without a glow of good feeling. Now, what was the secret? How is it that one sends us away irritated in every fiber of our being, and another humiliated, and a third feeling that life is a nobler thing and we have made a friend. One you say is cold and heartless, another unreal and not thoroughly honest at the core, while a third lacks tact, but the last is unselfish, honest, through and through, and full of "the milk of human kindness."

Now, it matters little what your position in life is—minister, teacher, business man, or anything else—it is worth your while to think a little about the way you have, perhaps it's a way you have fallen into, of saying no. A great many times a year it must be said, and said firmly.

Then is it not best to say it squarely and honestly? At the same time, can you say it pleasantly and kindly? More than that, can you not show your genuine interest in the worker, if his manner is not discourteous, and while declining, preserve your own self-respect and his also?

Believe me, there are a good many persons not a thousand miles from where you live, who might profit by turning over a new leaf on this subject. It would not take long for you to put the name of some minister, or doctor or teacher, and three or four business men, right in here in several places. And then, excuse me, it is just possible that some well-meaning neighbor of ours might put in your name or mine. Quite awkward, I know, and yet had we not better look and see if they have not some reason for so doing?—Golden Rule.

—A soft hammer turneth away noise. Old lady—"Oh, carpenter—yes—while you were at dinner I—ah—tied some rags round the head of your hammer as I found the noise of it, this morning, disturbed me very much. You will find it much pleasanter now."—London Fun.

—Three women in the city were recently made seriously ill by eating butter containing a mineral poison. It can't be possible that the cows are eating arsenic to improve their complexion?—Philadelphia Chronicle.

—Eugene Webster caught his enemy, Stephen Tarbell, in a secluded place at Bedford, Mich., tied him fast to a board, and leisurely inflicted horrible torture by cutting him here and there with a knife.
